Rev. Dr. Fritz Traugott Kristbergs was born in 1945 in the closing months of WWII near Dresden, Germany. His parents were refugees who left their native Latvia and fled on foot to Germany. He was born along the way. They lived in a refugee camp in Germany until 1950 when the family, now with 4 sons, moved to the United States, first living in Mississippi and then in New Jersey where Fritz's father, a Lutheran pastor, established a congregation among Latvian immigrants there.

Fritz received his education in the United States: B.A. Monmouth College, 1969; M.A. (History) University of Maine, 1971; M.Div. Princeton Theological Seminary, 1976; D.Min. Princeton Theological Seminary, 1996) In 1976 Fritz began work at The Institute for New Testament Textual Studies in at the University of Munster, in Germany where he was a senior academic staff member and editor of several scholarly publications for New Testament text and language studies. During this time, he also served several small Latvian Lutheran congregations in Westphalia in Germany. He is currently on leave of absence from Doctor of Theology studies at Trinity College at the University of Toronto.

In 1985 he accepted the call to come to St. John's Latvian Lutheran Church in Toronto, where he has served as senior pastor. Dr. Kristbergs was the editor of the current hymnal used by the Latvian Lutheran Church in Latvia and throughout the world. His field of doctoral studies was the dynamics of ethnic ministry and he has lectured and led seminars on this topic in the United States, Germany, Latvia and Canada. Dr. Kristbergs retired from active ministry in 2015, having served St. John's Latvian Lutheran Church for 30 years.

Fritz is married to Lilita Stripnieks, who is also retired, having been CEO of the St. Catherine's library system. They enjoy traveling, theatre, opera and time spent at the cottage.

As a competitive fencer, Fritz has won individual and team medals in Canada, the United States and in competitions in Europe. He is 5 time national gold medalist in his age group and has represented Canada at 5 Veterans Fencing World Championships. Fritz enjoys gardening, music and reading, particularly history and detective novels.

Baiba Zarins-biography

Baiba's commitment to innovation in health care education and professional development is seen in her role within University Health Network as Program Manager of an innovative Bachelor of Science nursing program in collaboration with Nipissing University and three Toronto academic health care delivery organizations. This second-degree program prides itself utilizing the tenants of narrative inquiry and cognitive apprentice pedagogies to foster practice ready nursing graduates. Within her role, Baiba facilitates the development, operations and support of affiliate organizations, program learners and faculty within a shared governance model.

Past collaborations include the Registered Nurses Association of Ontario, within the Best Practice Guidelines (BPG's) and Advanced Clinical Practice Fellowship programs to develop, implement and sustain evidence-informed practice initiatives. This collaboration fostered UHN in achieving designation as a provincial Best Practice Spotlight Organization (BPSO). Other leadership initiatives include supporting UHN's organizational capacity and knowledge networking with remote First Nation communities and international professional development opportunities; both which exemplified unique responsiveness to health human resource needs.

Baiba's expertise actively contributes to health care organizational practices within point of care evidence informed practice strategies, policy development, risk management and health care education strategies.

As a commitment to lifelong learning, Baiba's most recent journey includes both Master of Arts and Doctorate degrees from Fielding Graduate University. Her extensive nursing career spans many roles within point of care clinical, educational and administrative capacities spanning acute and community care sectors. Most notably, in her long standing role as Chair of the Board of Directors of Kristus Darzs Latvian Home, an ethnic based long term care facility located in Woodbridge, Ontario.

Baiba is a contributing author in several health care journals, publications and reference texts. She holds cross-appointments to Nipissing University, the Lawrence S. Bloomberg Faculty of Nursing, University of Toronto and most recently, invited international collaboration with the Riga Strazdins University (RSU) Faculty of Nursing, located in Riga, Latvia.

Ara Good has been a Registered Massage Therapist since 2000, with her career starting in Toronto, where she built practices in private multidisciplinary clinics, and in the Granite Club. After having her two boys, she decided she wanted to work closer to home, so she moved her work to a Massage Therapy clinic in Mississauga, which she eventually bought with a business partner in 2008. In 2016, she and her husband decided that they wanted a slower pace of life, and more exposure to nature for their kids, so they decided to move to beautiful Collingwood ON.

She sold her half of the clinic, and set to work building a clientele in her new town. She was fortunate to find a wonderful chiropractic clinic to join, and they were incredibly supportive in helping her build a new Collingwood practice. After Covid hit she was shutdown for the first 3 months. During this time, she decided to move her practice home to reduce exposure, and have more control over infection prevention, and she's been happily treating her clients at her home practice since.

Over the course of her career, she has studied many different modalities, including acupuncture and cupping, Tapping/Emotional Freedom Techniques (with a trauma-informed focus), Wellness Coaching, and is now working on becoming a Practical Herbalist. She has always been interested in health and healing, and enjoys helping her clients feel their best, and understand their bodies better.
